Oleg Kedrya characterizes the style of his works as Naturalism. His most significant works demonstrate his profound knowledge of animals and their impressive forms in motion. He is very scrupulous in details and uses all materials freely and creatively in his works – it allows him to express beautiful and powerful movements of different objects in his works. He achieved the highest level of the expression of animals’ movements. Some of his works feature so perfect, but at the same time, wild movements of untamed horses of the Russian steppe. Oleg was influenced by the heritage and history of this region: one may trace deep knowledge of Cossacks’ history and team sports in his works. His works are adored because they reflect the forms and motions of animals very realistically. All his sculptures are performed in bronze. In some works, Oleg used silver and gilding. As a stand, he uses such stones as Italian marble, and jade.
